

FEMALE vs. WOMAN

1. They asked me which puppy I wanted, and I liked the gray, fuzzy [x].
2. All of my teachers are [x] this year.
3. There were a lot of [x] at the bus stop.
4. Sarah Palin was the second [x] vice-presidential candidate to win a major party's nomination.
5. Johnny refused to go into Victoria's Secret because it was a shop for [x].

X = female, woman, females, women

WHO'S or WHOSE

1. [x] phone is this?
2. Mr. Smith, [x] not even my counselor, called my mother about my F in AP Psych!
3. [x] going on the trip to Panama City?
4. The car [x] alarm was going off was towed out of the parking lot.
5. My foreign language teacher, [x] pickle breath is out of control, likes to breathe his stink in my face during our oral examinations.

LESS vs. FEWER

1. I was upset when the trail mix that I bought in the vending machine had [x] nuts than the mix I bought at the store.
2. I made [x] money working at Best Buy than I did when I worked at Lowe's.
3. My dance teacher has [x] sense than a grapefruit.
4. There are [x] weeks in a semester in college than there are in high school.
5. The flight attendant said there were [x] angry passengers on Wednesdays.

WHO vs. WHOM

WHOM refers to the object, WHO refers to the subject.

1. [x] do you love?
2. To [x] are you referring?
3. [x] let the dogs out?
4. I do not know [x] is responsible for this mess.
5. [x] cares?
6. We need to know [x] to blame.
7. Sara is the woman [x] my mother met at work.
8. "Insanity is relative. It depends on [x] has [x] locked in what cage." – Ray Bradbury